METHODIST CONGREGATION RAISES THE ROOF

DAWN FELDHAUS/POST-RECORD

The 150 members of Camas United Methodist Church are celebrating the recent addition of a new roof, as well as the repair and painting of the church steeple and installation of new curbing and a sidewalk along the 1400 block of Garfield Street. Phases two and three of the church's capital improvement campaign will include replacing basement windows, adding a stair lift and updating the church kitchen. For more information, call the church at 834-2976.

NEW ADDITION NEARLY COMPLETE

HEATHER ACHESON/POST-RECORD

Work on the new 6,000-square-foot addition to Zion Lutheran Church in downtown Camas is nearing completion. According to Pastor Tom Tweed, this week crews are pouring the cement for sidewalks and completing the final interior work. "We're very excited," he said. "They've done a great job of making the architecture fit with the old [building]. It's beautiful." The $1.67 million project, which includes the addition of conference rooms, meeting rooms, administrative offices, an elevator and expanded Americans with Disabilities Act compliant access, is being done by RSV Construction Services, Inc., of Vancouver. Construction began in March, and a dedication ceremony will be held Sunday, Nov. 23, at 10:30 a.m. The church is located at the corner of Northeast Fourth Avenue and Garfield Street.
